Dolores Cabrera

La Araucaria Rosado 2017

Dolores Cabrera is a long-time farmer working in the Valle de la Orotava, Tenerife. Her vineyards have always been worked organically, with a portion of the parcels being certified organic. After selling her grapes to larger producers for many years, Dolores started making and bottling her own wine in 2013. The product of her efforts is La Araucaria, a singular and natural approach to the Listan Negro grape, the predominate grape of her region.

The D.O. of Valle de La Orotava is located in northern Tenerife, the largest of the Canary Islands, and named after its historic town. Wine-growing dates back to the Spanish conquest of the 15th century, and this is the oldest of the 5 appellations on the island. The valley is shaped by Pico del Teide, the 3rd largest active volcano in the world with its peak at 3715 meters. The hot maritime climate is moderated by the cool, humid trade winds blowing off the coast throughout the year.

La Araucaria rosado is made from centenarian Listan Negro vines planted on Mount Teide's slopes in the unique cordón trenzado ("braided cord") method. The grapes are hand-harvested and 100% destemmed, skin-macerated for 12 hours and the juice bled off without pressing to ferment in steel tank. Bottled with light fining and filtration, and minimal SO2 added. This is a pure expression of volcanic Canary terruño with notes of red and black fruits, cracked peppercorns, purple flowers, and volcanic soil. Pair it with grilled meats & poultry, charred octopus or mojo rojo.
